In this talk we'll compute the Fourier transform of $\log |x|$ using linear algebra. We'll start by showing how to derive the important properties of the Fourier transform without resorting to integration by parts and then go from there. Some familiarity with log is assumed, although in principle not required. There will be pictures.

Feb 22 at 5:15pm